Trent ne fait que son métier, mais il le fait bien. Il le fait mieux que personne. Son métier consiste à interroger des suspects. Avec patience, intelligence, tact et malice, avec art. Jusqu'à ce qu'ils avouent leur crime. Face à lui, ils finissent toujours par avouer. Trent a quelque chose d'irrésistible. " Sa touche magique ", disent les journaux. " Tu es ce que tu fais ", disait sa femme, Lottie, avant de le quitter. Ce jour-là, le crime est particulièrement horrible et la récompense promise à Trent particulièrement désirable. Quitter enfin son bled pourri du Vermont. Faire carrière. Le petit-fils du sénateur Gibbons était en CE 2 avec Alice, la victime, sept ans. " La ville a besoin d'une arrestation, les familles sont bouleversées. Écrivez vous-même l'addition. Je tiens toujours mes promesses ", dit le sénateur. La police a mis la main sur Jason, douze ans, qui a passé l'après-midi à faire un puzzle avec Alice. C'est un garçon original, maladroit, timide, violent à ses heures. Très observateur. Épris de justice. Un marginal, donc. Le seul problème, c'est qu'il nie. Trent se met au travail.

This work is a collective reflection on the modern self as a narrative. Modernity as a metamorphic conglomeration of permeating discourses, new practices and institutional forms, a historical unfolding of centrifugal and centripetal discursive dynamics of regulation and normalization offers limitless grounds for a critical investigation. The modern self, both as the revelation of the inner self and as a reflection of the collective, arises from the dialogical interplay within the intersubjective communicative space of social discourse. The bestiary proposed in this series of articles attempts to rethink the spectacle consisting of modern dichotomies by which the self is declined along ontological, metaphysical, and ethical premises: the real and the ideal, the said and the unsaid, the rational and the irrational, the bound and the free, the familiar and the exotic, the universal and the particular, self and world. The reader is therefore encouraged to engage in a multiple reading of the articles presented in this collection. As individual scholarly pieces of inquiry, these articles provide thoughtful insights into the inexhaustible topic of modernity and the modern subject—they tell stories of the past, the present, and of a prospective future. As academic works, however, they also reflect and/or unsettle disciplinary paradigms and scholarly practices, from which they acquire legitimacy and visibility; they conform, apply, reconfigure and/or experiment with new grounds by borrowing from an eclectic mix of various thinkers, their tools, and their axiomatic propositions that constitute their theoretical and critical apparatus. This exercise is ultimately an introspective journey in which we are placed not only as the spectator—the one who gazes through the bars—but also the spectacle—the beast subject to the gaze—finding itself in a predicament of which the subject, itself, is the architect.

Twelve-year old Jason is accused of the brutal murder of a young girl. Is he innocent or guilty? The shocked town calls on an interrogator with a stellar reputation: he always gets a confession. The confrontation between Jason and his interrogator forms the chilling climax of this terrifying look at what can happen when the pursuit of justice becomes a personal crusade for victory at any cost.

Denny answered the phone. He was forbidden to ever answer the phone, but at 16, he figured his dad's rule was just stupid. And Denny is soon plunged into a terrifying ordeal of revenge and madness for a horrific incident that happened 25 years before.

The Woman of Mystery Maurice Leblanc - There was a development among the group. Everyone assembled around the exit. An overall official, joined by two confidants, ventured out into the station-yard, where an engine vehicle stood sitting tight for him. The strains were known about a tactical band; a legion of light infantry walked as it were. Next came a group of sixteen ponies, driven by mounted guns men and hauling a gigantic attack piece which, regardless of the heaviness of its carriage, looked light, in view of the limit length of the firearm. A group of bullocks followed.

Picking up twenty years after Pride and Prejudice left off, Mr. Darcy's Daughters begins in the year 1818. Elizabeth and Darcy have gone to Constantinople, giving us an opportunity to get to know their five daughters, who have left the sheltered surroundings of Pemberley for a few months in London. While the eldest, Letitia, frets and the youngest, Alethea, practices her music, twins Georgina and Belle flirt and frolic their way through parties and balls and Camilla -- levelheaded and independent -- discovers what joys and sorrows the city has to offer an intelligent young woman. Readers will delight in the return of such beloved Austen creations as Elizabeth's old nemesis Caroline Bingley (now Lady Warren), the ever-reliable Gardiners and wayward Aunt Lydia. Charming, beautifully written and full of societal intrigue and romantic high jinks, Mr. Darcy's Daughters is a tale that would please Austen herself.
